*But without faith it is impossible to please him: for he

Pastor's Paragraphs

I have been reading a book entitled, American Christian Rulers or Religion and Men in Government.

It consists of short sketches of men of Christian faith and experience in American history. They served in national and state governments and the judicial branch on the local, state, and national levels. This book extends from the colonial period to about 1900. Some of these men you will remember and some you have never heard of.

I will be giving you excerpts from their testimonies. I pray it will be an encouragement. However, for some in may put us to shame and that we need to improve our spiritual life.

The first one is William Appleton. He was in the House of Representatives in the mid-1800's from the state of Massachusetts. He wrote in his diary: "The thought of having it in my power to do something to extend this religion . . . to lead others to believe in the cross of Christ, fills me with grateful delight. May God Almighty strengthen me in well-doing." Nothing has changed in over 200 years, for he was concerned about the political and social influences of Washington, D.C. "I dread the thought of being drawn towards the world, and further from Him to whom my sole confidence and my service are due. I doubt myself. I put all my trust in God, and pray that He will direct and strengthen me." Congressman Appleton goes on to say, " Oh, may God purify my motives, and bless my gifts!"
